The Commander's Message

Cdr. Seth Cirker, SN

After what seems like an eternity of virtual meetings and events, it is great to see face-to-face, in-person events now occurring.

Many thanks to Sharon, Gene, Gil, Sean, Marco and Carol for representing our squadron during Safe Boating Week at West Marine in Port Washington. This has become an important event for us as it provides an opportunity for unfamiliar boaters to learn about our organization and the benefits we provide. At the same time, it allows us to learn more about the specific needs of the local boating community. With this information we can better determine which of our offerings, from vessel safety checks to classroom education and on-the-water training is of most interest and value.

Recognizing with the end of lockdowns people's schedules are already overloaded catching-up on things missed last summer, we have determined it is best to focus on less time-consuming activities like our seminars, Jump Start and Boat Operator Certification programs while holding off on the multi-session courses. If you are interested in any of these, please let our Squadron Educational Officer Mary Ann Jordan know.

Beyond in-person educational opportunities, Bayside has two social events, raft ups, planned this summer. One on July 11th, in Little Neck Bay and the other on August 15th, in Manhasset Bay. For more information on these, please reach out for Past Commander Gil Allen.

In addition to our local Bayside activities, District 3 of America's Boating Club, which consists of us and our fellow Long Island squadrons, invites you to "Rendezvous East" in Greenport from July 30th to August 1st and on their fishing trip on August 28th. Information including the cost of and how to RSVP for these events can be found in this issue of the Running Lights.

As following this issue, the Running Lights will be on a two-month summer hiatus, please keep an eye on your email and regularly check our website for updates on upcoming activities.

Wishing everyone a great and safe summer on the water.

Permission to proceed!

In 1848, Congress enacted legislation that adopted a design of a flag to be used by “licensed” yachts in the United States. Such vessels eligible for “licensure” were initially ≥ 20 net tons and were, thus “licensed”, permitted to proceed from one port to another (within the United States) without having to formally clear customs in each port.

The flag designed for this purpose was based upon the national flag's design but was modified to display the circle of thirteen stars (representing each of the original 13 colonies) in the canton (the blue field, symbolizing vigilance, perseverance, and justice, in the upper left corner of the flag) within which was placed a depiction of a fouled anchor. The 13 stripes, again representative of the 13 colonies, in alternating red (symbolizing hardiness and valor) and white (symbolizing purity and innocence) colors remained unchanged.[§]

Such was the birth of the yacht ensign and, as deemed by the 1848 act, became the “signal” required by all “licensed” yachts to identify themselves. These requirements were reaffirmed in subsequent years by the Secretary of the Navy and, eventually, with widespread adoption of this practice, even among “unlicensed” yachts, the Secretary of the Navy, in 1939, declared "...that a ship of the Navy should return a dip made by a yacht flying the yacht ensign and that the yacht ensign may properly be made the object of a hand salute to be rendered on boarding or leaving a yacht."

Ultimately, the Vessel Documentation Act of 1980 removed several provision pertaining to the prior classification system of “licensed” yachts, effectively requiring that all documented recreational vessels be treated in the same manner. Among these changes, the legal requirement for “licensed” yachts to fly the yacht ensign was repealed. Nonetheless, given that the privilege of passing through port without clearance had long since been extended to recreational vessels regardless of federal documentation or state numbering standards, the tradition of flying the yacht ensign in US waters continues to this day.

Fair Winds!

Marco K Michelson, AP

Squadron Executive Officer

[§]The 13 colonies consisted of Connecticut, Delaware, Georgia, Maryland, Massachusetts, New Hampshire, New Jersey, New York, North Carolina, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island, South Carolina, and Virginia. The Articles of Confederation, ratified on March 1, 1781, created a loose confederation of sovereign states operating with a weak central government. The Constitution was ratified at the Constitutional Convention in Philadelphia on September 17, 1787 and the first Congress and the new government began work on March 4, 1789, at which time the Articles of Confederation were officially supplanted by the United States Constitution.

Educational Officer's Report

Lt/C Mary Ann Jordan,

Along with the rest of New York State, ABC of Bayside is slowly moving beyond pandemic mode. We still are offering our ABC course remotely. Taught by Sean Donohoe, it begins on Wednesday, June 2 at 7:30PM and will run for five weeks. In the meantime, we have scheduled an in person event at Capri West Marina in Port Washington on June 19 from 10AM to 12PM. It will be an Under the Tent Presentation, free to the public and spotlighting some of the very practical elements of boating that we include in our educational courses. In a series of hands on activities, we will be showing models of different types of anchors, teaching knots, demonstrating VHF for communicating on the water and the use of safety equipment such as lifejackets. We hope to attract a new audience for our educational resources.

ABC of Bayside will present two seminars, topics to be announced, virtually this summer. In the Fall, we plan to offer in person classes, focused especially on courses that we see as benefitting from mentoring face to face such as the Marine Navigation or Advanced Marine Navigation courses. We are also considering offering a Weather course that could be remote, in person or a blended program of remote and in person teaching. Our plans to offer in person education depend on low levels of Covid-19 in our community. We are eager to hear from our members what seminars or courses they would like to take. That will help to set our agenda in the future.

We would also want to encourage people to sign up for the ABC course, which meets NYS requirements for boater safety certification. As you probably know, according to Brianna's Law, each year the age requirement for boating safety certification to operate a motorized vessel rises. If you were born after January 1, 1993, you will need certification this year. By 2025, all boaters will be required to have boating safety certification to operate a motorized vessel. Another point to keep in mind, if boating with youngsters who want to be at the helm, once they are 10 years or older, they too need this certification.

We're happy to let you know that Bayside Power Squadron Inc. is eligible for a TechSoup COVID Recovery Fund grant. This fund supports your nonprofit with technology upgrades to adapt to remote work. As an eligible recipient, your organization will be reimbursed up to $2,000 USD for new purchases of select products and services.

Last month, I reported on the use of electric motors in boats as a path to clean energy. One of the companies I reported on was Elco, which has long been in the business of manufacturing boats. One of our members, P/C Dan Fannon, AP and our Safety Officer, who owns a 1936 Elco cruiser, not electric, that he has restored to mint condition, replied that he was delighted to see Elco mentioned in the context of its history as manufacturer's of electric motors and he sent along two pictures of boats used as ferries in 1906 and 2004. They appear below, not looking so noticeably different from each other. It seems that classic design lives on!

Administrative Officer's Report

Lt/C Suzanne Zenkewich,

Post Pandemic Travel

By the time you read this, John and I will be sailing in the Bahamas on our first international trip in eighteen months. Travel post pandemic is exciting, anxiety-producing and uncertain. For instance, to travel to the Bahamas, you need a health visa which requires either a negative covid test or proof of vaccination. This adds another element of stress. Since the visa requirement is so new, what should take 24 hours takes eight days, while you wait with bated breath to find out whether you can actually go on your trip.

Many countries are opening up but each one has its own rules. Many of the countries in the European Union are closed right now but Greece and Croatia are open to vaccinated people or people from certain countries. Other countries are open but require quarantines even with negative testing or vaccination. So vacation planning doesn't just mean researching the country you plan to visit, but also visiting the websites for the Department of State, the CDC and the country's official website to find out if you can even travel there.

But there are so many things we missed about traveling! The excitement of narrowing down where you want to go. The research into planning sightseeing and touring. The tour books and websites. The planning of your schedule. The exhilarating moment of booking your flight. The uncertainty about what you need to pack. The anxiety of going through security and immigration. The nervous feeling you get sitting at the gate waiting to board. The feeling of release when the plane takes off on your way to a new adventure. The simplicity of living out of a suitcase. The feeling of anonymity because you are thousands of miles from home, no one knows who you are and people at home don't know exactly where you are. The thrill of meeting new people and the awe of seeing sites you've only read about. The anxiety of figuring out public transportation and the fear of getting lost. The smiles shared with strangers who don't even speak your language.

Travel is an incredible learning experience. If more people traveled, there would be more peace in the world. We would realize that most people have the same dreams and aspirations: to be free, to be safe, and to live in peace. That's why we need to travel again.

From the Crow's Nest

Lt/C Sean P. Donohoe, SN

That's it – we're done. We're done with changes of watches and done with district meetings and done with the Running Lights. Now it's time to start the summer. Some squadrons were a little later than usual. I don't know if it was cold feet or something else. Either way, all the commanders have been installed. I learned a long time ago, you can run but you cannot hide. You will be sworn in one way or another. District 3 is like the Royal Canadian Mounted Police – they always get their man or woman. Of course, our change of watch was held last month on 3 May and of course, it was virtual, and of course it rained just like it does when we have our change of watch in person. And that is the only benefit of virtual meetings.

Rendezvous East is back and hopefully it's back with a vengeance. Don't wait until the September issue to read about what happened. Instead, join us for all the fun, food and friendship – all the things that took a beating last year, so let's make up for lost time. Notices went out and I'm sure there will be information and reservation forms in this issue, so no excuses. The COVID shot is now available and I heard that plenty of vitamin D is also a good way to fight COVID and you can get that from the sun which will be plentiful in Greenport. You can also get it from the abundance of cheese appetizers that will be at the commander's cocktail party on Friday evening and the squadron hospitality on Saturday afternoon and the dance party Saturday evening. If you gained weight during the pandemic, you could work it off on the dance floor. Since we are now the D3 Lines, I think we are going to be doing a lot of line dancing. You can also sweat off the extra pounds if it is as hot as it was the last time. If that doesn't work, you can also come biking and kayaking with me. Just don't think that we're going to have a tandem bike or a two-person kayak where I do all the work. If you lost weight, you could gain it back with all the food that will be served. Just do it after the bike ride or the kayak trip.

Speaking of lots of sun and fun – Bayside, Port Washington and Oyster Bay Power Squadrons teamed up once again for our annual picnic at Harry Tappen Beach. I think this was the first time in 15 years that we have had a picture-perfect weather day for our picnic. The pandemic perfect weather last year cancelled our picnic, so maybe I should say 14 years. Either way, it was a perfect day to put COVID-19 behind us. It was comfortably warm with a nice summer breeze even though it is still spring. Eleven members and three guests of Bayside together with the other squadrons got rid of both the masks and social distancing. Remember when women burned their bras in 1968 for Women's Lib? I say we repeat history and burn our masks. At one point during the festivities, many people suddenly disappeared. At first I thought Bob Holub, chairman of the District Nominating Committee, showed up. It turned out that Gil Allen showed up with his new boat and of course, everyone went for the grand tour. By the way, never tell Bob the location of your events – you may wind up on the bridge instead the event. I don't have to worry – I've already been drafted.

As I mentioned in my last article, we had our first in person event in over a year at West Marine during Safe Boating Week. In between people getting supplies to clean or in most cases to repair their boats, I went shopping. I was disappointed that there were no kayaks on display for me to look at and then not buy one. Some people say that I have commitment issues but I don't see it. All that was available was a stand-up paddleboard (SUP) for me to check out. I just don't see the attraction to SUPs. If I want to stand around and go nowhere fast, I will get a sailboat. At least with a kayak, I can sit and relax if I go nowhere fast and have a cup holder for my Coke Zero.

As I mentioned earlier, this is the last issue until September. Putting out ten months of issues is a big drain on the brain cells and the newsletter staff needs a couple of months to recharge. I for one can really use this break because my brain cells started the news cycle like the national budget – with a deficit. With the pandemic still going on and everything shut down and no events taking place, I did not think I would have anything to write about. But, I have to say that I amazed myself because for the past nine months I managed to write about nothing. Maybe I should run for congress and then I can do nothing, which will go great with my writing and my fishing. And one more thing – no more hibernating. We're not bears, we're boaters. So, let's get together and have fun.
