The Commander's Message

Cdr. Seth Cirker, SN

On Sunday, May 1st we will be holding Bayside's 86th Change of Watch. It is at this annual event where we thank the outgoing Bridge and install the new officers of our squadron. While traditionally the Change of Watch has been more of a standalone formal event, this year we wanted to try something new. We will be combining the official meeting with a buffet brunch. It's the perfect time for a more "social" Change of Watch as many of our Officers and Committee Members will remain the same. The event will be held at the Douglaston Club. We anticipate a terrific time will be had by all. For more information, please see the flyer in this issue of the Running Lights. If you'd like to attend, please RSVP as soon as possible - space is limited.

While a full list of the incoming Officers and Committee Members can be found in last month's Running Lights, I'd like to give a quick shout out to those on the Bridge who will be joining me in the upcoming year. Thank you all.

Executive Officer Marco Michelson - Responsible for the external functions of the Squadron. In the Commander's absence, acts as Commander. The committees under the Executive Officer include: Boat Show, Cooperative Charting, Liaison, Legislative, Public Relations, Safety and Vessel Safety Check.

Educational Officer Mary Ann Jordan – Responsible for all of the educational activities of the squadron including public boating courses and the educational curriculum of the entire squadron membership. The SEO serves as a member of the District Education Department and serves as a liaison for information from District 3 and the National organization. Once again, as SEO, Mary Ann will be joined by her husband Jim, serving as Assistant Educational Officer.

Administrative Officer Suzanne Zenkewich - Responsible for all the internal functions of the Squadron. The committees under the Administrative Officer include: Membership, Membership Involvement, Boating Activities, Meetings and Programs, Entertainment and Operations Training.

Secretary Sharon Molteni – Responsible for keeping logs of attendance and minutes of all meetings. Is in charge of keeping the records of the Squadron and its members up-to-date. Maintains the mailing list for meeting notices and squadron communications.

Treasurer Sean Donohoe - In charge of keeping the Squadron's financial records, receives all monies, pays all bills and coordinates necessary state and federal tax filings. And, finally after two years of virtual meetings, our next General Meeting, on April 19th, will be held in-person at our usual meeting place, St. Anastasia Church in Douglaston. Please join us if you can – the door prize as well as 50/50 raffle will be back and you won't have to supply your own refreshments.

Educational Officer's Report

Lt/C Mary Ann Jordan,

The Marine Navigation Course is winding up with a final virtual meeting on Thursday evening, March 31. Then the students will be completing the take-home final exam that includes charting a cruise in Bowditch Bay. The ABC Course is underway and should finish early in April. Certainly presenting courses virtually since the pandemic has created a steep learning curve for our instructors. Perhaps with Covid currently waning in the US, we will be able to offer in person or blended courses (some sessions virtual; some sessions face to face). Educationally, USPS, including Bayside, finds itself in a new world.

Another sign of a changing future is found in the report of March 26, 2022 appearing in the San Francisco News about an 83 year old solo sailor setting out to voyage non-stop from San Francisco to Osaka, Japan. The sailor, Kenichi Horie, estimates the trip will take two and a half months. He is sailing in a 19 foot sailboat, Mermaid III, made of aluminum and weighing a paltry 2,182 pounds. The boat has been designed to accommodate Horie's size. He is 5 feet tall. Such a small boat does not leave much room for amenities or much equipment. Fortunately, this trip is not Horie's first solo sail. Those of us who have taken JN and SN have planned a passage from the West Coast of the US to Hawaii. We have learned about the size of the swells in the Pacific as well as the water temperature. We have also seen the estimates indicating that the winds can be quite strong. All of these calculations make Horie's boat seem small indeed.

In 1962, sixty years ago, Kenichi Horie, at the age of 23, set out from Osaka to sail solo in a small wooden boat, Mermaid, to San Francisco, a journey of 5,300 miles. He completed the trip in 94 days. Korie had broken a Japanese law by sailing out into the Pacific without permission and of more consequence, his passport had not arrived before he left, When he arrived in California, he had no passport, no money and spoke very little English. At first he was arrested and jailed. When the Mayor of San Francisco heard about his sailing accomplishment and his subsequent reception upon arrival in the US, he granted him a 30 day visa and gave him the key to the city as a reward for bravery. His voyage was the first solo, non-stop sail across the Pacific. After his trip, Korie wrote a book titled Alone on the Pacific that was made into a movie nominated for a Golden Globe Award. The original Mermaid is displayed in the San Francisco Maritime National Historical Park Museum. Now sixty years later, he has set out again on a boat of a similar size to the original Mermaid that he initially sailed on his maiden voyage across the Pacific.

To put Horie's voyage in perspective, I reported last Fall on another long distance solo sailor, Jerome Rand, who sailed around the world on a 32 foot boat that sounded pretty small to me, but it weighed in at around 6 times more than the Mermaid. What's more, Rand was half the age of Korie on his present sail. Not only does Korie perform the amazingly brave and difficult feat of sailing solo nonstop thousands of miles numerous times, but he also sails on environmentally friendly crafts made of recyclable materials such as aluminum cans, beer kegs and whiskey barrels. Horie too makes use of clean energy: A solar powered boat made of recycled beer cans carried him from Hawaii to Japan and another boat propelled by foot pedals brought him from Hawaii to Okinawa. His longest sail, from Salinas, Ecuador to Tokyo on a solar powered boat put him in the Guinness World Record for the fastest crossing of the Pacific using solar power. None was quite as amazing as his trip on the Suntory Mermaid II, a wave-powered boat with movable fins mounted on the bows of a catamaran. It was capable of propelling the boat forward from the movement of the waves no matter from which direction they were coming. Such a craft owes its propulsion to a readily available source of free energy leaving no carbon footprint and requiring no storage system. This seems a further step forward toward sustainable energy that I reported on last Spring. That report highlighted the replacement of fossil fuel powered engines by electric engines using solar power to charge the batteries.

Looking at Kenichi Horie's current solo voyage, we see that many more people are living longer in the 21st century and also continuing to lead active, productive lives. We see more possibilities in the use of renewable energy, all of which may be reasons for optimism.

Administrative Officer's Report

Lt/C Suzanne Zenkewich, P

A great day trip this spring is the Long Island Maritime Museum, 88 West Avenue, Sayville NY.

The Museum's mission is to preserve Long Island's maritime history and heritage for educational purposes; to purchase, collect, restore and preserve boats, vessels and related equipment having to do with past and present maritime activities of Long Island, including shipbuilding, whaling, shell fishing, commercial and sport fishing, wild fowling, pleasure and competitive boating, watercraft and ethnic heritage; to restore, preserve, interpret, display and exhibit watercraft of historical interest, models of ships and small craft, tools and implements of the maritime crafts and trades, wild fowling decoys, paintings, prints, maps, charts, and books, and displays featuring wildlife.

The Museum was founded in 1966. First called the Suffolk Marine Museum, it was dedicated to the collection and preservation of artifacts of the maritime history of Long Island. Long Island has, since our nation's beginning, been deeply involved in its maritime history. Native Americans, followed by settlers from New England, immigrants from Europe and suburbanites from New York City, have fished, harvested shellfish, gone whaling and built ships and boats on its shores.

Today, pleasure boating is one of Long Island's largest industries. With this rich heritage as a foundation, the Museum, located on the Great South Bay, opened its doors to the public on May 1, 1968. The Museum received its charter from the New York State Board of Regents in November 1983. The Board of Trustees, in cooperation with the Suffolk County Department of Parks, Recreation and Historic Preservation, developed a collection of vessels, historic buildings, machinery and artifacts. In 1993, support from Suffolk County ceased and operations were privatized under the corporate identity, Long Island Maritime Museum and the Museum's charter was amended to reflect a name change to the Long Island Maritime Museum. This change reflected the expansion of the Museum's focus and audience to include all of Long Island.

The museum honors our region's rich nautical heritage and the role of Long Island in our national maritime story. Whether it's boat building, shipwrecks, shellfish harvesting or recreational boating that captures your imagination, it's all in the museum, the galleries and at the many featured events and programs. Young and old alike will discover the links between the Island's maritime and natural histories and will encounter some of the amazing creatures living in our local waters.

Today, a full-time staff of full and part-timers and a dedicated volunteer force successfully operate the Museum and its programs. Many of the maintenance and restoration projects have been adopted by volunteers, under staff supervision, as educational programs.

The museum schedules several educational programs for both adults and children throughout the year. Upcoming programs include on April 3, a program entitled "Beebe Boat Yard: Its History & Surf Boats" will be given by Commander Timothy R. Dring, USNR (Retired). On Sunday, April 10, the museum will feature a program entitled "Birds of Long Island" given by Steve D'Amato. On May 1, the museum will present a program entitled "America's First Freedom Rider" with book signing by lecturer and author Jerry Mikorenda.

The museum plans to hold the annual seafood festival at the end of August and the traditional Halloween boat burning in October.

The museum also presents several children's activities, such as Story Time by the Bay on Thursdays for children ages 3-6 which includes storytelling on the deck with a scavenger hunt to follow. During spring break, from April 18 through April 22, the museum is presenting five different programs including wildlife and birding programs for children from 1st to 5th grades.

The museum is open Mondays through Saturdays from 10 am to 4 pm and Sundays from noon to 4 pm. Admission is $8 for adults and $6 for children and seniors.

You can also go for a sail on the sloop Priscilla. Priscilla worked as an oyster dredge from 1888 to 1963 and has been beautifully restored. The Long Island Maritime Museum offers both public and private charters that depart from Oakdale. Each two-hour sail is guided by a Licensed Captain and volunteer crew and includes a narrative depicting Priscilla's fascinating history.

For more information, check out the Maritime Museum's website www.limaritime.org or call 631-854-4974.

From the Crow's Nest

Lt/C Sean P. Donohoe, SN

No matter what date or calendar you're looking, it is definitely Spring. That begs a particularly important question – do I put away my shovel and ice melt? I know as soon as I do, we will get a major snowstorm. That being said, I will keep them out indefinitely. I am really hoping this is the end of the snow since I am on the disabled list after having surgery. If anything you read doesn't make sense, it can mean one of two things – either the pain medication is taking effect or it is just my usual article. If this issue comes out late, it will be my fault. I am typing with one hand so it will take me twice as long to finish this article. How ironic – I'm typing with only one hand but I am making twice the mistakes. If you don't see me for a while it will be because I am still at the keyboard. My hunt and peck method of typing is now just peck. With my luck, I will get carpal tunnel in my left wrist and have to have another surgery. My public absence may also be because it is difficult to take a shower and I don't want to offend anyone. As I am writing this article, I am contemplating going to the Neptune change of watch. I may not get a shower, but at least I will get fed.

There's a lot of irony here. The day before my elbow surgery, I had to get a plumber to fix my toilet. He said the elbow pipe going from the bowl to the flushometer needed to be replaced. So, me and the toilet had a lot in common. However, my toilet was easier and cheaper to fix. When the plumber told me what it would cost to fix the toilet, he said he would give me a senior citizen discount. I don't know if I should be happy or offended. On top of that, my toilet repair came with a one-year warranty. I didn't get any warranty or discount from my doctor. The next time I have a medical problem, I think I will call my plumber instead of my doctor. I will call an electrician if I experience any memory issues, to see if he can fire up the neurons. And I will call the gas company if...I think you get the idea.

Last month, I mentioned that there would be a few changes around the district and those changes are still happening. Due to a scheduling conflict, we had to move the memorial service. It will be on the same day and same time but a different location. We went from the north shore to the south shore and a little further east. It will take place at Cross of Christ Lutheran Church in Babylon. Hopefully, you will still be able to join us to remember our departed members.

These unexpected changes are not just happening to district functions; they are happening on a squadron level as well. Remember the catch phrase at the end of the old Batman television show with Adam West – same bat time, same bat channel? That will not be the case for Bayside's change of watch this year. We will not be able to go to Academy of Divine Wisdom, so we will be going to a new place, on a new day and at a new time. I am the first person to say that change is a good thing, but this amount of change, at once, is more than I can handle. I prefer one event at a time per year. Our change of watch will be at The Douglaston Club on Sunday 1 May 2022. I'm not so sure that it is a good idea for a boating club to have a change of watch on 1 May. Why? 1 May is also known as May Day and that might be a bad omen. However, if we follow the tradition of the Irish, we may be able to do an end run around the omen. People in Ireland place flowers on the doorsteps or windowsills of their houses on the morning of 1 May to bring good luck and offer protection against the fairies. This is also the day to dance around the maypole, so bring your colorful ribbon. Our change of watch is not just a meeting, we are going to make it a brunch as well. That's the kind of change I like – whenever food is added to the event and I don't have to cook or clean up.

There is another thing that changes constantly and we expect it, but I think it has gone too far and that is the gas prices. As bad as they are on land, I can't imagine what they will be on the water. If I still owned a powerboat, I would seriously consider trading it in for a sailboat. Hopefully, everyone filled up their tanks before winterizing. I was going to just drive back and forth to the Spring Conference on Saturday 9 April to save money on a hotel room, but at these prices I could get the presidential suite and still save money on gas. Gil Allen and Maureen Biglin will be receiving their Life Member awards at the conference and some crazy Bayside member will be going on the district bridge, so hopefully you can join us. I'm sure there will be plenty of fun and food for everyone.

Due to unforeseen circumstances, District 3 was required to change location for our Annual Memorial Service.

Directions:

Church is located on Deer Park Avenue, just 6 blocks south of Sunrise Hwy. Parking available both on the street and in the parking area. Car Pooling is best.

There are many restaurants in Babylon. Here are a few suggestions:

Mulberry Street: 30 E. Main St	631-321-5980
Francesco's: 29 John St	631-587-1340
Lily Flanagan's Pub: 345 Deer Park Ave.	631-539-0816
Post Office Café: 130 West Main St	631-669-9224

Cafe Gio: 761 Sunrise Hwy	631-587-2251

For a large crowd, I would recommend Cafe Gio. It's located in a large strip mall with plenty of parking. One exit West of Deer Park Avenue at Hubbards Path, North side of Sunrise Highway. Lidl is the anchor store. Food is excellent. Or Nunzio's (but I don't know about parking). Parking for other restaurants may be a challenge on a Sunday night. Captree Power Squadron, P/C Carol Johnson, AP
